ChatGPT is a prototype chatbot developed by OpenAI focused on usability and dialog. It is a large language model based on GPT architecture. It was released in December 2022.[1][2][3]

According to The Guardian it is able to generate "impressively detailed human-like written text."[4] After using the bot on a student assignment Dan Gillmor considered the output to be on par with what a good student would deliver and opined that "[a]cademia" would have "some very serious issues to confront" in the future.[3]
